Newest Model Suzuki Arrives in Baltimore for Distribution

(Baltimore) – Suzuki's first entry into the mid-size car field arrived in the Port of Baltimore Monday, for distribution to dealerships in the Midwest, mid-Atlantic, and Northeast portions of America. 672 four-door Veronas rolled off the ship HUAL Trotter, in the first of a series of many shipments expected from South Korea.

“We plan to double our number of imports into Baltimore, from 25,000 to 50,000,” said Mike Gorman, Regional Suzuki Manager. “We chose this port as our debarking facility because of the white glove treatment the cars receive, and the processing and inter-modal capacity of the location.”

Baltimore currently ranks number two on the East Coast for bringing in automobiles. Suzuki's vehicles are manufactured in Japan and South Korea.
